Grandma's Glasses

Written by Noni

Illustrated by Tanaya Vyas

Nani keeps losing her glasses. “Where did I keep them?” she always asks. Without her glasses, she cannot find her glasses.

So she needs me. To be her eyes, to find her own eyes!

Sometimes her spectacles are in the bathroom.
Or on her bed. Or on her head.

“Nani,” I say, “they are on your head!”

“Of course! How silly of me. Thank you, Richa dear,” she says with a giggle.

This time, though, I cannot find Nani’s glasses. Not yet.

I have looked everywhere. In all the usual places.

On her head, in the bathroom, inside her cupboard and on the puja shelf.

I have looked under her favourite chair and on the dining table.

Nothing. No glasses. Where could they be?

I decided to be a good detective. I decided to find out what she had done all day.

“I did nothing much today. Except that Veena’s mother-in-law came, you know. And how much she gossips! We had many cups of tea. And she ate all the laddoos your mother had made,” said Nani.

Raju said, “Nani was very busy today. She wrote a letter to the Chief Minister about her pension.”

Amma said, “She spoke for a long time to your Masi. She finished knitting the sweater for Raju. And then she went for a short walk.”

I now had many clues. I quickly looked around new places in the house.

Aha! I have found the missing glasses!

The spectacles were wrapped in wool, kept next to her pen, under the phone, on her desk. And I found a half-eaten laddoo there as well. For Nani's next birthday, I will save money for an extra pair of glasses!

Nani: Hindi word for grandmother

Masi: Hindi word for mother's sister

Pratham Books was set up in 2004, as part of the Read India movement, a nation-wide campaign to promote reading among children. Pratham Books is a not-for-profit organization that publishes quality books for children in multiple Indian languages. Our mission is to see "a book in every child's hand" and democratize the joy of reading. If you would like to contribute to our mission, please email us at info@prathambooks.org.

Noni is the pen name that Rohini Nilekani uses when she authors books for children. As a child, Noni is what she called herself. Rohini Nilekani is a writer and a philanthropist. She is a co-founder of Pratham Books.

Tanaya Vyas is an animator and illustrator from the National Institute of Design, Ahmedabad. Her day starts with a doodle and ends with a bunch of them! She enjoys swimming in chocolate, writing poems, jumping on the moon, singing with cats, photography, drawing on walls and creating something new every day!
